

Upping Your Elvis said: “Saqqara have been our go-to guys for IT for the past three years, after being seriously let down by previous suppliers. We are a team of only semi-competent Mac users, and are thankful that Graham, Aaron, Kevin & Paul are always able to get us out of our computer pickles.

“In recent years, we have had to rewire the office, and we are completely confident with the choices they made. In that instance, they dealt directly with our electrician regarding installation, ensuring that we didn't get our wires crossed, quite literally!

“We continue to call on them to help solve day-to-day snags, and in spite of their techie jobs, we appreciate their human way of explaining things, and their readiness to help. As a company that aims to improve efficiency in any way possible, we call on them for advice and research, which they provide to enable us to make informed decisions.

“It's quite telling that most of their staff recognise our phone numbers, and we certainly appreciate that they do!”
